News from Commissioner Mitchell Chester & the MA Department of Elementary and Secondary Education

On the Desktop - November 12, 2015

Dear Superintendents, Charter School Leaders, Assistant Superintendents, and Principals,

Today I made my recommendation to the Board of Elementary and Secondary Education regarding the future of student assessments in Massachusetts. The attached memo and press release will be shared with the media today at 1:00 p.m.. I'm recommending that the state transition to a next generation MCAS that would be given for the first time in spring 2017 and would use PARCC as a starting point. The Board will vote on the recommendation at its regular meeting that starts at 8:30 a.m. November 17 at 75 Pleasant St., Malden.

For spring 2016, districts that administered PARCC in spring 2015 would do so again, and the remainder of districts would continue with MCAS unless they affirmatively choose to administer PARCC. The MCAS tests in spring 2016 would be augmented with a limited number of PARCC items in order to help make statewide comparisons easier and to offer students and staff the opportunity to experience PARCC items while the new assessment is being developed.

My memo calls for the state to:

- Award a new MCAS contract to include a next-generation assessment for English language arts and math using both PARCC items and items specific to Massachusetts;
- Commit to computer-based state assessments with the goal of implementing this statewide by spring 2019;
- Remain a member of the PARCC consortium in order to have access to high-quality assessment development while sharing costs with other states and to be able to compare next-generation MCAS results with those of other states' assessments; and
- Convene groups of K-12 teachers, higher education faculty and assessment experts to advise ESE on the content, length and scheduling of statewide tests; testing policies for students with disabilities and for English language learners; the requirements for the high school competency determination (currently the 10th grade MCAS); and the timeline for reinstating a history and social science test.

Under my recommendation, any districts that administer PARCC in spring 2016 for the first time would be held harmless for any negative changes in their school and district accountability levels, which is consistent with the state's approach to districts that used PARCC for the first time in spring 2015. I propose that every district would be subject to accountability levels in 2017, when all of the state's districts would use a single test.

The full recommendation is attached and will be posted at www.doe.mass.edu.

From 4-7 p.m. November 16 at Malden High School, the Board will hold its sixth and final public comment session on the direction of Massachusetts' next statewide assessment system. On November 17, the Board will vote on the Commissioner's recommendation during a meeting at ESE's Malden office that will start at 8:30 a.m.. Following the Board vote, we will update you with an On the Desktop message.

At 3 p.m. November 17, we will host a conference call with superintendents about the Board's vote. Registration is available at: http://www.doe.mass.edu/conference/?ConferenceID=8225.

As always, please see our Assessment and Accountability Data Review and Release Schedule for additional details regarding PARCC and accountability reporting. If you have questions, please email parcc@doe.mass.edu.

As a reminder, information and materials for parents can be found on our PARCC website at www.doe.mass.edu/parcc.

My Best,

Mitchell

COMMISSION: INSURANCE, SPED UPDATES WOULD REQUIRE $432 MIL CHAPTER 70 AID INCREASE

[Story Developing] High costs for employee health insurance and special education have reduced the resources school districts can invest in other areas, including extended learning time, books, technology, arts, and counseling, according to a report released Monday by a commission charged with evaluating the state's school finance law. The Foundation Budget Review Commission, established by legislation in 2014, called in its report for updates to how the state calculates the per pupil cost of delivering education in Massachusetts. According to the report, school district spending on employee benefits throughout Massachusetts exceeds the foundation budget allotment by more than 140 percent. The commission recommends that the formula be changed to calculate insurance costs and inflation rates based on actual averages from the state's Group Insurance Commission. The foundation budget formula "understates the number of in-district special education students and the cost of out-of-district special education," the report found. Its authors recommended increasing the in-district enrollment rate and out-of-district cost rate to accurately reflect what districts are paying. If the insurance and special education adjustments were adopted in full, the amount of Chapter 70 aid issued statewide would need to increase by nearly $432 million to $4.9 billion. If they were adopted partially next year with the intent of phasing in changes over four years, the increase would be nearly $96 million. "We recognize that recommendations of this scope and size will need to be phased in to be affordable," the commission wrote in its report after also calling for increased funding for schools teaching English language learners and low-income students. The report urges the Legislature to act with "a keen sense of urgency" in addressing funding gaps it identified. Commission members are discussing their recommendations in the Senate Reading Room. -Katie Lannan/SHNS

Commission: State underfunds schools by $1 billion annually

By Gerry Tuoti GateHouse News Service

BOSTON - The state's 22-year-old school funding formula understates the true cost of public education by more than $1 billion annually, according to a group of lawmakers and education experts who unveiled a new plan Monday.

"We've been seeing increasing warning signs in recent years: accumulating school budget cuts, the fraying of the system that's brought us so far since 1993, stagnant achievement gaps, growing social inequality," said state Sen. Sonia Chang-Diaz, D-Jamaica Plain, Senate co-chair of the group.

The Foundation Budget Review Commission, a group created by the state legislature, gathered Monday at the Statehouse to release its report on updating the school funding formula. The report's recommendations, if adopted, would significantly overhaul the formula for the first time of the state's 1993 Education Reform Act.

Implementing the report's recommendations to address health insurance and special education costs would result in a $431.7 million increase in Chapter 70 education aid statewide, while districts across Massachusetts would see their required contributions to their school budgets rise by a combined $136 million.

The new formula, they said, would more accurately reflect the costs of health insurance and special education, while providing more funding to school districts with high concentrations of lowincome students and students in English Language Learners programs.

"Millions of dollars across the commonwealth will be freed up to be spent on what our students need," said state Rep. Alice Peisch, D-Wellesley, the House co-chair of the commission.

Fall River Education Association President Rebecca Cusick, who taught for 22 years, said new resources could be used to reduce class sizes, increase extended-day programs and expand support networks for students with emotional needs.

"The needs of children in gateway communities like since it was adopted as part mine are significant and are getting more significant every day," she said. "Additional resources would be a huge benefit to us in meeting the needs of our most vulnerable students and allowing them to focus on their education."

Rising costs for employee health insurance coverage and special education have led to drastically increased non-discretionary spending in school districts over the past several years. Those fixed costs, commission members said, have eaten up funding initially intended for use in the classroom and on student services.

Under the commission's plan, the revamped funding formula would use actual averages from the Group Insurance Commission — the insurance plan for state employees - to calculate a school district's insurance costs and associated inflation rates.

The new formula would increase the weighting given to English Language Learners to better reflect the level of resources districts often need to commit to helping those students become proficient in English. It also calls for a new tiered system that would increase funding given for low-income students in school districts with high concentrations of poverty.

Dear Mr. Kitchen,

This fall season we were able to purchase a brand new set of soccer goals for our athletic programs. We now have 4 complete sets of soccer goals and really only have a need for 3 of them (2 to be kept at Hastings and 1 set to be kept at the high school). This leaves 1 set of soccer goals that is worth $0 to our program. I would like to recommend that our oldest set of soccer goals be listed as surplus so that we can get rid of them and not have to store them in our limited storage space.

Thank you for this consideration,

Scott Francis Athletic Director Fairhaven High School
